

Background for Lynda Warner

I received my bachelor's degree in nursing at the University of Michigan and my master's degree from the University of Washington specializing in the care of people with cancer. I am blessed to be married to John (twenty-five years) and have three growing boys/young men. I am passionate about children's literature, creation, God's unfathomable grace and "tweaking" curriculum to fit the student so that learning is the joy God intended. I am grateful to be a member of COVE and count it a privilege to pass on what God has taught me.
