

Natasha Sansom has a BS in Social Work, MS in Human Services, and believes in teaching others how poetry can be a powerful tool for ministry. She is a published author, spoken word poet, and actress. She has been the producer & host of The Peaceful Poetic Place poetry & music series since 2011. The series is known as the longest running Christian poetry series in metro Detroit. She released her freshman CD, Spoken Soul I: Perfect Imperfections, in 2016. She is the recipient of the National Poetry Awards - Christian Poet & Spoken Word Artist of the Year (2011); Religious Poet of the Year (2013 nominee); and Host of the Year (2016). Her poetry has been heard at a variety of venues, churches, public and private events and featured on 89.3 FM and 910 AM, to name a few. She has performed with, and opened for, international jazz artists and gospel rap artists. More recently, she opened for stellar-award winning gospel artist, Casey J. She has been teaching poetry to youth and adults since 2013, including a mental health agency, homeschool groups and after-school programs. Finally, she is a home school mother to a creative and talented son who is a professional actor that loves to sing. www.MyBeautifulThoughts.net
